

Multi-Column Layout Document

Left Column Content

This column contains the first part of the document content. Multi-column layouts are common in academic papers and reports.

The parser should maintain the correct reading order when processing this layout.

Right Column Content

This column contains the second part of the document content. Proper column detection is crucial for maintaining the document's logical flow.

Content should be processed in the correct sequence.

This page is in landscape orientation to test rotation handling.

The parser should correctly detect and process rotated content.
